

We have benefitted tremendously from the Indiana Telephone Privacy Act, which had decreased the 3-5 calls PER NIGHT we used to get down to only 1-2 a week. This allows us to have meals or watch a TV show or have a conversation in peace. I urge the FCC to do nothing to abrogate the Indiana privacy law. We the people deserve this protection. The arguments in favor of more commercial calls are extremely weak in comparison to the rights of persons to be left alone in their homes and not pestered (or worse, assaulted verbally or financially) by unsolicited calls.
